

SCOTLAND YARD RELICS.

Horrible Mementoes and Ingenious Criminal Devices in the London Black Museum.

The Crime of a Jew for Which He Suffered Death on the Gallows.

The Little Card Trick of an American—Two Clever Diamond Swindlers—Jekyll and Hyde.

The detective struck a match so that he could see our way down a narrow passage and a crooked flight of steps, says the Philadelphia Press. The steps led into a small whitewashed cellar with a wooden floor and a skylight set in one corner of the ceiling. Outside, the high walls around the brick court, known as Scotland Yard, shut off all but a faint, foggy light. The detective lit a gas-jet, and said with a wave of his hand: "This is what we call the Black Museum; these are the relics of all the principal crimes that have made any talk in London for over fifty years." I had prepared myself for a gruesome chamber of horrors, but the place at the first glance was a disappointing look of the commonplace. It was much like the back room of a junkshop, and all that resembled a museum was the counter which stretched around the four walls and held the relics labeled with a scrap of writing, burrowing from some old newspaper. But when the detective began to give each inanimate exhibit its story the place and the objects in it became alive and pregnant with terrible significance. Each scrap of iron and rusty knife grew eloquent over the tragedy in which it had acted, and the dagger replete of a beautiful woman or a jewel box with a broken clasp brought back picturesque and fearful stories of love and jealousy and avarice and crime that Galvani might have conceived and Poe and Stevenson written.

The detective picked up a long, thin bottle, tightly corked and half-filled with a dark, oily liquid. "That is vitriol," my guide said, shaking the bottle. "A Polish Jew grew jealous of a woman and threw her down and poured part of this stuff down her throat. A horrible death, sir. But he hung for it. Most of the money of all the Jews in Whitechapel went to pay for his defense. They petitioned the queen, and they retained the best barristers in London, but they could not save. And because they couldn't save him they now do all in their power to mislead the Whitechapel police in their search for Jack the Ripper. This is Lipka's coat. You can see where the vitriol burned it. It was one of the strongest evidences for the prosecution."

"Here is something curious," he continued. "It may interest you, being an American. It's the smartest Yankee trick I ever saw. It belonged to a gentleman gambler, an American, who had a fine house in St. John's Wood, where he used to entertain younger sons and boys with big incomes to win their money at cards. We would never have known of him if he hadn't killed a man there one night, and in going over the place we found this. This was a leather sleeve to fit over the forearm. To it was attached a piece of steel mechanism fashioned after the gates on a erryboat, that stretch half across the end of the boat entrance when open and close into a space of a foot or so when shut. This was worn under the coat sleeve, and by resting the forearm on the table, as a player at cards naturally does, a spring would send the miniature gate out until it reached the edge of the wearer's cuff. There is a cleft in the end, and any card the player may think he will want later can be stuck in it. By raising the arm the spring is released, the steel extension flies back, still holding the card and keeps it hidden until it is wanted. There is another invention of the Americans for the same purpose. It consisted of a flat tin box, fitted inside the waist coat pocket and holding high cards, which could be shot up out of the box by the action of a stout spring. This was used inside the trousers and worked by the player's foot."

"He was a very clever chap," the detective admitted, "but he had a match for him," he added with national pride. "That was Charles Pence, the burglar."

Pence was the most celebrated burglar England has ever known. He is not only a hero in the East End, but you will find that the club men and the diners-out of the West End are well up in his wonderful exploits. Every child that visits Mue. Tonsauds Chamber of Horrors is shown the photograph of the gentle-faced, white-haired old man who for so many years played Jekyll and Hyde in a deadly earnest. He lived in Kensington and ostensibly kept a store. In the afternoon he drove in unfashionable but beautiful Battersea Park, in the evenings he sat on his doorstep chatting with his neighbors, and the "bobby" on the beat, whom he often invited inside to have a half pint of bitter with him. But at night, when his neighbors were snoring peacefully, the old man gathered up his jinnies and his revolver, covered his shoes with woolen stockings and sallied forth to rob and at last to murder. He made the greater part of his own tools and showed a mind of a wonderfully mechanical turn. He also invented a hair dye with which he could change the color of his eyebrows and hair at will, and he used his own smelting pot. He had no accomplices. For years he carried out the most successful burglaries in London, the clanging of the police and the terror of the household, and when at last he killed a man in trying to escape and gave the police a clue, his ingenuity in evading them made him a national character.

Among the relics they have of him in the Black Museum is his wooden ladder, which measures only 12 by 20 inches when closed, and which when opened reaches to a second story window, and the false arm with a hook in it which he wore over his left hand, a Capt. Cuttle, to mislead those who were looking for a man "with a broken finger on his left hand."

"A wonderful man, that, sir," said the detective. "Did you know that he said to the chaplain who attended him before he was hung? The clergyman had been talking to him of the life and death of Christ, and Pence said to him: 'Do you believe that? Well, if I were dead and believed that, I'd walk the world over on my bare feet on broken glass to tell it to every miserable devil I met.'"

Winter Excursions to California.

On the 15th day of every month the Northern Pacific Railroad company will sell excursion tickets to San Francisco and return at $75 to Los Angeles and return at $94. These tickets have an extreme limit of six months from date of issuance and can be used going any time within sixty (60) days from date of sale. Stop-overs allowed at any point desired—either going or returning—within limit of ticket. Excursionists have choice of two routes from Portland—by steamer, or by rail, via the famous Mount Shasta route.

Bear in mind that the Northern Pacific is the only line running through sleeping and dining cars to the Pacific coast.

The Latest Out.

A Daily Through Car Service has been established by the Chicago, Union Pacific & North-Western Line from San Francisco,

Portland, Spokane Falls, Butte and Helena, to Chicago via Council Bluffs, thus offering to the public facilities not given by any other line. "The Limited Fast Mail" which runs daily between the above points, carries the Overland Fast Mail, a limited number of first-class passengers without extra charge, and is composed of Pullman Vestibule Sleepers, San Francisco to Chicago via Council Bluffs, Pullman Vestibule Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, Portland to Chicago via Council Bluffs.

This is another indication that the Union Pacific is desirous of meeting the requirements of the people. For information in regard to this and other trains on this line, apply to any Ticket Agent or E. L. Lomax, General Passenger Agent, Omaha, Neb. A. E. VEAZIE, Agent.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is purely a vegetable preparation, being free from injurious ingredients. It is peculiar in its curative power.

Woman's Discovery.

"Another wonderful discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this county. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking the first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamrick & Co. of Shelby, N. C. Get a free trial bottle at R. S. Hale & Co.'s drug store.

Heretofore Strength.

Continually on the strain, or overtaxed at intervals, is far less desirable than ordinary vigor perpetuated by rational diet and exercise, and abstention from excess. Professional pugilists and athletes rarely attain old age. As ordinary vigor may be retained by a wise regard for sanitary living, and for the protection against disease which timely and judicious medication affords, so also it may be lost through prolonged sedentary labor, uninterrupted mental strain, and foolish eating and drinking, the chief and most immediate sequence of all four being dyspepsia. For this condition then, or in any way induced, and for its offspring, a failure of muscular and nerve power, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the primeval and most genial of remedies. Not only indigestion, but loss of flesh, appetite and sleep are remedied by it. Incipient malaria and rheumatism are banished, and kidney, bowel and liver complaint removed by it.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Salt, druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles and was cured of rheumatism of ten years' standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Belleville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my twenty years' experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the liver, kidneys or blood. Only half a dollar a bottle at R. S. Hale & Co.'s drug store.

Cure for Piles.

Itching piles are known by moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching after getting warm. This form, as well as blind, bleeding and protruding piles, yield at once to the application of Dr. Ross's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the diseased part, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching and effecting a permanent cure. Fifty cents. Address Dr. Ross's Medicine Company, Piqua, Ohio. Sold by R. S. Hale & Co.

For chapped hands, roughness of the skin, pimples or blotches of any kind on the face or other parts of the body, apply Ross's Specific. It works like magic and is warranted by druggists. Sold by R. S. Hale & Co., wholesale and retail druggists, Helena.

What on Earth

Is the reason people will not, cannot, or do not see any difference in cheap nostrums put up by Cheap John houses or irresponsible parties at enormous prices, rather than take a medicine of world-wide reputation and one that is giving universal satisfaction at equal price? No medicine in the world is giving such unparalleled satisfaction for purifying the blood as Begg's Blood Purifier and Blood Maker, and every bottle that does not do its work will cost you nothing. For sale by druggists. Sold by R. S. Hale & Co., wholesale and retail agents.
